

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a chemically synthesised artificial promoter comprising a DNA sequence designed for the target level and pattern of gene expression, by strategically putting together several signature sequences identified by sequence alignment and statistical analysis of a large database constructed for this purpose.